Another Negro Hanged for Outraging a White Weman.

Disgosting Details of the Crime-Descriptions of the Fiend and Wis Helpless Victim.

the crime of rape, committed nearly twelve mentas go on the person of a WHITE MARRIED WOMAN, named Sallie L. Usher. Sad though it be to say it, this is one of the crimes to which the negroes have come addicted since their emancipation. They do ot heskate, when opportunity offers and there is title fear of detection, to gratify, by force, their brutal passions on the persons of white females, though retribution, sure but often swift, follows the perpetration of such a nideous and revolting out-And it might here be remarked, by way of parenthesis, that if there is one cause than another to which can be attrinted the alleged Ku Klux outrages in this and many of the other Southern States, it is this propensity of the negro, despite the frightful exambefore him, to violate the persons of white romen. But few of these horrible crimes are ever lowed to await the tedlous, though certain, cours Vengeance is sure to follow in the footsteps of the act, and a brother, father, husband, the unnatural outrage on female virtue. In nume rous instances, where negroes have been shot, panged, or otherwise Ku Kluxed, in this State particularly, the primitive causes can be directly traced to indignities offered to or outrages perpetrated anon white females, about which nothing ever appears in the public prints; and these acts are then paraded before the Northern people as evidences of a rebellious spirit on the part of the South. This is all fudge; for, notwithstanding the speech of Mr. Jefferson Davis at Atlanta, nine-tenths of the Southern people do "accept the situation," and a majority of e growing generation deeply regret that he should have given such serious concern as to their future course. This digression from the subject matter of my report I nope will be excused.

Twelve months and more ago Mr. John Usher, a well-to-do millwright and thrifty farmer of this county, bired as a farm band NED M'LENDON.

negro, short in stature, contracted in physical development and with a head the peculiar formation of which was eminently suggestive of the species of animals said to be closely ailied to the negro race.

The head was small, but large in the bumps at the ack and just above the neck; the features were back and just above the neck; the features were like the body, contracted, with a low, narrow fore-head; eyes that had a half imbedic expression; a flat squarty sort of negro nose, and projecting thick lips, far out of proportion even for a negro when taken in connection with his entire form. Ned had been in the employment of Mr. U-her perhaps two months, and, with the exception of a smail white boy, he was the enty domestic in the family. Usher's peculiar avocations frequently required his mosence from home, and he had made it one of Ned's imperative duties to supply the house with water.

As soon as Mrs. Usher recovered her senses she tottered or rather staggered to the house, and her poor craving in their mnocence the water which the difortunate mother was unable to bring. She looked at them sadly and pitifully, with what feelings can

MONSTER HAD FLED.

He sought refuge from the impending vengeance that was certain to tollow his beastly act on the Grassy Islands, in the ree Dee river, and there procured employment from one Mr. Cooper. Here, in this unfrequented region, he thought he was secure; but the attern hand of instice was on his track. Mrs. Usher, as soon as she had recovered from her injuries, in the absence of her husband, walked one mile and a half to the residence of her later. Mr. Bosuck, to whom she related the terribie outrage, in agonizing tones, that had been committed upon her. In sorrow, in slience and with deep humination, the aged father listened to the recitat of his daughter's woes. He bowed his head, and, as he said, submitted to the decrees of the Aunghty, and counselled his daughter to patiently bear with her affliction, to pray and to forgive. Notwithstanding this, however, Mrs. Usher's brother soon heard of his sister s wrongs, and, with the instincts of a man and aroused feetings of an injured brother, gun in hand, he went in quest of the field who had violated his sister; but he was nowhere

Her father, Mr. Bostick, was one of those genuine old law-abiding cutizens of the old North State, who deprecated violence, and who administed both his injured daughter and her indignant brother that the law in such a case should take its course, and that they should not interfere and mar the siern justice that must ultimately be meted out to the offencer against the laws of both God and man. With the return of Mr. Usher these wise counseis prevailed, and on the saturday following the day upon which the outrage was perpetrated Sed Melenion was almested on a magistrate's warrant on the Grassy Islands in the Fee Dee river, where he was at work for Mr. Cooper. He was committed for examination and was sent on for indictment by the Grand Jury of this county; and at the October term, 1870, a true billy was found against him. At the February term, 1871, his

TRIAL TOOK PLACE.

Owing to the winespread interest in the case the court room was packed to suffocation. Ned was ably defended by Mr. Archie hichonaid, of Moore county, and General Dargan, of Wadesboro—the latter an eminent member of the bar—who made a most powerful and sairring appear in his defence. The jury was composed of

and, after hearing the evidence and arguments in the case, they retired. In three-quarters of an hour they again reappeared in the court room. There was an intense stience among the crowaed audience as the foreman handed in his veranct. A pien of insanity had been offered, which, it was thought, would have some weight with the jury. Every ear was strained, the audience head its breath, and the foreman announced, in the most solemn tones, "We find the prisoner

In all my experience I had never seen one like it before. The jail is a large, square, substantial, wooden building, painted a snowy white, situated on the east side of the town, and in the upper story of which are jocated the cells of the prisoners, separated from the outer frame of the building by a passage and a thickly fromed partition. Over the stairway leading to the upper story the scaffold was generated. In conformity with the laws of the State Fequiring executions to be private, there being no jail yard. The machine of death consisted of a cross beam supported by an upright resting on the corridor, and fastened to the wall-on the opposite side. The drop hing directly over the stairway and allowed a fail of more than seven feet. All the appliances of death ever strictly complete, and even to the requisite number of witnesses and the summoning of a guard the preparations for the terrible tragedy were finished. The crowd was not large, though a number of colored people of both sexes had congregated without me jail enclosure to be as near as as possible the dying agonies they could not witness. A little before twelve M., in company with the Rev. Mr. Sandford and Mr. Walker, a young lawyer, your correspondent visited the condemned man in a cell opening upon the passage in which the scaffold was crected. He was attired in a neat sant of sint of DARK LINEN CLOTHES, wore a scrupulously clean linen shirt, and at the time we entered the cell he was crouched in a corner on the floor. By request of the clergyman he arose and took a seat on a chair, a sufficient number of which were provided to accommodate both prisoner and visitors, Air, Sanford, whom I take to be a devont, though a young minister of the gospel, spoke feetingly and religiously to the condemned of his approaching end, after which your correspondent had the following conversation with the doomed

This concluded my conversation with Ned. He was exceedingly cool, and did not seem TO APPRECIATE HIS Closs PROXIMITY to death; and at the time it was fearful to contempliate, with the scaffold just outside the door. A few minutes later and the Sheriff, Mr. Shortridge, entered the cell, and in a voice tremulous with feeling and excitement he bade the condemned man to stand up and accompany him to his (McLendon's) terrible death. Still seeming as if he did not appreciate his doom, Ned stood and walked

FIRMLY TO THE SCAFFOLD.

It was but a few steps. The passage outside the cell door was througed with the few spectators admitted to witness the tragedy. At the opening of the door these gave way, and an avenue was opened through the living mass for the victim on his way to eternity. Arrived upon the scaffold the unfortunate man stood erect, not over five feet three inches in height, with the Sneriff and his deputy—one on either side of him—and the Rev. Mr. Sanford in front. With persistent devotion to the cause in which he labored, the young clergyman laid his hand on the shoulder of the condemned man and whispered words of hope into his ear until the last. The Sheriff then ordered

The muscles of his face twitched nervously, out only to be discerned by a close observer, Mr. Shortridge, the Sheriff, then remarked, as he pintoned the limbs of the condemned man, "Ned, my duty is a disagreeable one, but I am bound to execute it." During the whole but brief time on the scaroid Ned never made an expression, though the upturned faces of the crowd secand to appeal to him for a word even But no; ne maintained a stoold silence. CYCLONE IN ILLINOIS.

Fearint Scenes on the Prairie-Devustation of a Whirlwind-Terrific Force of the Sterm-Singular Electrical Explosions-Everything in the Track of the Cyclone Anni bilated.

CHICAGO, June 3, 1871. A cyclone occurred near Mason City, Ill., last Fri-day morning. An inky-hued cloud, or smoke-like column, was observed gathering near the earth's surface, on an open prairie, six miles from that place, and from this column soon from that place, and from this column soon shot out three narrower and spire-like cloud columns, which continued to ascend rapidly until they reached and seemed to attach themselves closely to a passing cloud above. This frightful apparition moved slowly towards Mason City, but finally changed its course, much to the rehet of the people of that place. A mile from its track an odor, much like that of burning suiphur, was inhaled by several persons.

A gentleman who stood out a hundred yards from the cyclone when it passed says that small dashes of electricity were constantly visible in the storm column, passing from the earth to the clouds above, and that rapid, popping, cracking reports were neard, reminding him most forcibly of an infantry regiment in battle firing their muskets as last as nossible. The pathway of the cyclone was nearly three

The pathway of the cyclone was hearly three miles in length and from twenty to eightly feet in width, and in that pathway not a spear of grass, not a stalk of corn or wheat, not a shrub, not a particle of vegetation was left alive. For some distance the earth was literally ploughed up to the depth of six inches. The outlines of the pathway were so well defined that five fect from the outer line of total destruction of vegetation of every kind not a vestige of its effects could be seen. Fortunately no house stood in the tornado's line of march.

FURIOUS GALE IN ORANGE COUNTY.

Trees Uprooted, Fences Levelled, Buildings Demolished, River Craft Joopardized and a House Struck by Lightning. On Saturday afternoon the northeastern part of Orange county was visited by one of the severest thunder storms ever known in that section. Trees were uprooted and fences levelled by the gale of wind accompanying the storm, and vegetation of all kinds was badly damaged by the heavy fail of hall, some of the hallstones being as large as robins? eggs. At Middlehope, four mues north of Newburg, was strained, the and chook had its breath, and the foreman announced, in the most scient tones, "We find the prisoner of the prisoner as these awful words fell upon the court room there was a visible stir among the crowd, as if they were releved his doom stokally, and did not seem to realize the terrible position in which he was. On 'Change to-day wheat was in good demand for export, but sellers and buyers differed in prices and the market was inactive. The cotton market was strong and buoyant, and underwent a considerable rise on the publication of a despatch from Washington stating that reports to the Agricultural Bureau from eight of the cotton States show a falling off of 933,000 acres planted this year as compared with last. The despatch says, further, that this falling off in acreage and the unfavorable condition of the crops, it is estimated by the Agricultural Department, will cause a falling off in the cotton crop of over one million and a quarter bales.

MONEY EASY.

Money was easy and abundant. Among the stock uses the rates on call were 3 and 4 per cent, and to the government dealers 2 and 3 per cent.
Rather more inquiry was shown for prime commercial paper, and the several grades were quoted 414 a 514 per cent discount. Foreign exchange was dull and nominally the same. Sterling was quoted 110% a 110% for prime bankers' sixty day bills, and 110% a 110% for sight.

GOLD STRADY-111% A 112%. The quotations of the gold market were precisely the same as those of Saturday, except that at the close the best figure of the day was bid. The clique operators appear determined to force a crisis, and have withdrawn a large sum of gold from the Clearing House, as shown in the reduced balances o-day. Cash gold will doubtless be made quite scarce, as a means to force the covering of the reputed large short interest existing in the arket. Coin for delivery to-day on speculative contracts was worth a consideration ranging as nigh as 1-64 of one per cent per day, after earlier transactions in which a consideration of two per cent per annum had been paid for carrying. After banking hours an active business was done in the engagement of gold for the deliveries to be made to-morrow, and as high as 3-64 (equivalent to fifteen per cent) was agreed to be paid for the use of the rold. The course of the market is snown in the table:

In the gold loan market the rates ranged from 2 per cent for carrying to 1-64 for borrowing. The operations of the Gold Exchange Bank were as fol-

THE TREASURY BALANCES. The following are the United States Treasury balances:-Currency, $7,369,000; coin, $88,670,000. Of the latter sum $17,155,000 is represented by outstanding coin certificates.

The government list was firm, despite a slight reaction in London, where some apprehension is beginning to be felt as to the effect upon the money market of the restoration of peace in France. The five-twenties of '62 were quoted 90%, but came % in this market and the firm tone of the gold premium rendered the list firm. The final street rices were as follows:-United States currency sixes, 115% a 115%; do. do., 1881, registered, 114 a 114%; do. do., coupon, 117% a 117%; do. five-twentles, registered, May and November, 1111/4 a 112; do. do., 1862, coupon, do., 111% a 112; do. do., 1864, do. do., 111% a 112; do. do., 1865, do. do., 111% a 112; do. do., registered, January and July, 110% a 110%; do. do., 1865, coupon, do., 114\(\frac{1}{4}\) a 114\(\frac{1}{3}\); do. do., 1867, do. do., 114\(\frac{1}{4}\) a 114\(\frac{3}{4}\); do. do., 1868, do. do., 114% a 114%; do. ten-forties, registered, 109% a 109%; do. do., coupon, 110 a 110%. SOUTHERN SECURITIES DULL.

The Southern State bonds were generally steady and duil, the chief exception being the new South Carolinas, which seemed to share in the early decline of prices on the Stock Exchange and fell to 62%, but eventually rallied to 63. The latest street prices were:—Tennessee, ex coupon, 71½ a 71½; do. new, 71¼ a 71½; Virginia, ex coupon, 67½ a 68½; do. new, 73½ a 74; do. registered stock, old, she had left, and though it was twelve o'clock midday, beheath the rays of a tropical sun, sie screamed for help, though conscious that none was strained for help, though conscious that none was than the thing people of the chest, after which the moaster in pitcous lones; "Ned,"

STOCKS ACTIVE AND PEVERISH. The stock market opened with a sharp decline, led by Pacific Mail, which broke to 42%, and a smallsized panic was inaugurated, leading to a general outpouring of stocks, all before the first board got together. Here the chques began the work of rallying the market, and by dint of great perseverance got the list back to the opening prices, the intermediate operations giving the brokers quite a fresh supply of "orders," of which they had been running short. After the restoration of prices, as stated, the market became intensely dull and closed almost staguant. In the dechne Pittsburg touched 116%, and New York central 97 %. Lake Shore was involved temporarily. and fell from 115% to 114%, doubtless through the disgust of the outside holders at the non-declaration of the serin dividend in the interval since Saturday afternoon. Rock Island faltered and went off to 12234, but ied the subsequent rally with an advance to 12434. Pittsburg dropped to 11634, and Northwest common to 8434, the latter being also strongly railied at the close. Hannibal and St. Joseph preferred tumbled to 92%, overtaking and passing the common, which, owing to the covering of the "shorts," did not get below 93%. Ohio and Mississippi dropped to 45%. The decline of nearly ten per cent in these shares is partly attributed to a decrease of over $27,000 m the earnings for April. although the company are operating about fifty miles more road than at the corresponding period last year. The earnings for May are not at hand as vet. Some of the directors of Union Pacific are reported out of and "short" of it. HIGHEST AND LOWEST PRICES.

COTTON.—The excitement in the market for this staple was unabated. Continued favorable advices from Liverpool and accumulating reports from the South testifying to decreased acrease and senerally adverse in reference to crop prospects, caused a sharp upward movement, and prices, under a vigorous demand from spinners and speculators, further advanced to, per ib, in all qualities. The Agricultural Bureau at Wasnington, learns from eight of the cotton States, that there has been a failing off of at least 12 per cent in the number of acres planted, and it is set imated by the Agricultural Bureau that the total yield of this cop will show a decrease of 1,250,000 baies, as compared with the crop of inst year. The market closed with a continued upward tendency. The sales were as follows:—

A WHOLE TOWNSHIP ON FIRE IN NEW

A correspondent of the Tom's River Courier writes

A correspondent of the Tom's River Cowier writes as follows:—

Some days ago, as the workmen on the Tuckerton Railway were burning brush on the track near where it crosses Oyster creek branch it got beyond their control and caught in the cedar swamp. It was very dry and the wind was blowing fresh from the south and west, and it sent the names down on the village of Waretown at a fearful rate. The men collected together as soon as possible and did all they could to stay its progress. But httle could be done against the main portion of the flames, which soon reached the Tom's River and Watertown Railroad, which deadened it a little, but it went on, crossing the main shore road and then on down to the meadows. Women labored as well as the men, and it was only by the hardest abor that Mr. Camburn's and Mr. Eayre's houses were saved; by wetting the roofs the sparks and cinders would not ignue. It burnt Nathaniel Camburn's property almost entirely over and his loss will be heavy. The side fire came down and crossed Mill Branch by the west side of fitrisall & Co.'s cranberry bog, and was subdued on the upland, which stopped it from entering the viliage. The destruction of property has been immense, Oyster creek swamp has been swept clean from the Whiting Railroad to the main shore road. The loss will be large, as there was a heavy growth of cedar on it. A number of families removed their beds and valuables to the fields and burned them. The danger seems to have swept past us now, and, although much damage has been done, all are very thankful that such a kind Providence has kept us from a more trying and dangerous time.

After the fire left the precincts of Watretown it burned rapidly over the valuable cedar swamps of Oyster creek, sparing nothing in its destructive march. The large tracts of lands belonging to Messrs. John Kntherford, Rutherford Stuyvesant, D. H. Ticnenor and the estate of A. Russell were thorought that Forked river would bave stopped the ravages of the flend, but it sped north of that stream, and rag

George Gloerson and Homas Hooper, when the wind smitted, and away rolled the volume of fire and smoke to the eastward, on both sides of the stream towards the viliage of Cedar creek. By great exertions the entire viliage was preserved from destruction. North of Cedar creek the fire jumped the turnpike and struck in the swamp eastward and ran to the bay, where the water stopped its ravages in that direction. But the work of destruction was not yet finished. The fire worked up north, with the turnpike, until near the house of Mr. Job Platt, when its further progress was stopped.

Through this fire over 40,000 acres of fine thrifty timber and cedar swamps have been destroyed, and the loss cannot be estimated in dollars and cents. Probably it would not fall much short of $150,000, and we are satisfied that $200,000 would not cover the entire loss of timber. But the timber atone is not and we are satisfied that $200,000 Would not cover the entire loss of timber. But the timber alone is not the only loss; the barning of such intensely not fires upon the soil does not benefit it in the least, it would seem to draw the very life of the ground from it, and leaves it for years a barren waste in-

It would seem to draw the very life of the ground from it, and leaves it for years a barren waste indeed.

Many narrow escapes from house burning and death are told us, the fire in many cases almost outsiripping the fleetest runner or fastest house; but no buildings of account were burned, so far as we can learn by travelling over the immense waste. The confiagration lasted from Thesday morning until saurday morning. The waves of fire, as they surged back and forth amid the resinous pines and cedars, roaring and crackling like mad, involuntarily called one's thoughts to the day of doom, when the world will be destroyed. The sight was magnificent, but awfully suggestive, as the broad billow, some five miles wide, was sending forth immense piliars of cloud by day and fire by night reaching upward until lost to sight in the air above. All along the turnpikes and roads the people turned out to fight the fire. Men journeying on business hitched their teams by the waysine and went, with all their manhood, to do battle with the common enemy. We do not know of a solitary skulker; were there one our shoremen would invite him to "git?" with all possible speed from their midst. Where all did so well it would be unfair to particularize individual instances of bravery and daring heroism, which were numerous. At Cedar creek, while the men were away fighing the fire, the ladies and children at home flited their tuss, barrels and pails with water, not knowing how soon they would be wanted for the protection of their own homes; but fortunately they were not wanted. In some cases goods were moved from houses and stores in extention of a visit from the fire.
